SINGING FOR THE UNTUNED (Webpage)

Our twice monthly sessions finish on the 12th July to recommence on the Wednesday the 4th October. These are sociable sessions for those who like to sing popular tunes, without the need to read music; only lyric sheets. We number around 20, so those who mime would not be noticed. No solos are allowed, while tea or coffee and biscuits are provided. Our main aim is to have fun!!!!

ARCHITECTURE (Webpage)

We are having a break for a couple of months while folk have their summer holidays, and we meet again in September on the third Wednesday with a new course. For those folk who have been through the mill before I am going to improve and change its format to make it different and more interesting. We start again with Classical Greek so I am going to start the session with a social history of Greece and how and why these disparate and warring tribes eventually combined and amalgamated to form the nation that produced such wonderful architecture. We will look at examples of their architecture, how they built them, and why so much energy was used in producing those very expensive buildings. Videos are always good so I will interlace moving images with the stills. Hope to see you all in September.
